A GOOD MEETING.

AFTER MORE MANUFACTORIES.

A Large and Enthusiastic Meeting of the Business Men's Association Last Monday Night.

A meeting of the Business Men's association was held at their rooms in the Daly block last Monday evening, at which time a large number of our progressive business men were in attendance.

The meeting was called for the purpose of discussing the factory question and to see what could be done in the way of getting new industries to locate in this city.

President E. P. Arpin read propositions from several different concerns desiring a location here, including a shoe factory, starch factory and a wood working machine factory. The propositions of each struck our business men as being quite reasonable and a majority favored getting them to locate among us. Upon motion the matter was referred to Ernest Oberbeck, John Schnabel and Geo. M. Hill committee on manufacturing and industries, to investigate the matter more thoroughly and report at the next meeting.

A motion was made to discontinue the use of the present rooms provided the common council would grant the association the use of the city hall in which to hold future meetings. The motion was carried and a committee appointed to confer with the common council for that purpose.

Several minor matters were disposed of after which a lengthy discussion was had as to the best means of entertaining the editors on their visit here next month. A committee of three, consisting of E. P. Arpin, T. A. Taylor and Ernest Oberbeck, was appointed to confer with a like committee appointed by the Ladies Auxiliary to go ahead and make all necessary arrangements for the entertainment. Each gentleman present expressed his willingness to assist in whatever way desired by the joint committee in making the editorial entertainment a success in every particular.

It is earnestly desired and requested that each and every good citizen of Grand Rapids put forth his best endeavors and assist the committee in making preparations for this entertainment. This is a matter that should not be lightly thought of, as the editors are surely coming and when they arrive here we do not want it said that Grand Rapids is an iceberg, but instead we want it said by the editors when they return home that this city received them with open arms and their entertainment here was unequalled by any city along the Wisconsin river valley. Do not hold the opinion that this matter is one to be handled by our business men's association and the ladies auxiliary entirely, but make it a personal matter to all and do not wait for an invitation from these organizations to assist in this entertainment. Offer your services personally. The committee needs the help of all and if each individual will do a little, the bulk of the work will not fall so heavily upon the shoulders of a few. Let each one do something and we will entertain the editors in a way that will give the city of Grand Rapids a reputation for hospitality and progressiveness that will long be remembered by our visitors.

T. A. Taylor is contemplating getting up a souvenir to be presented to each of our coming visitors in the shape of a portfolio of views of scenery and the several industries in and about this city, and states that the mill men have signified their willingness to subscribe to a fund for that purpose. The idea is a commendable one and Mr. Taylor should receive the encouragement necessary to go on with the work.

County Court.

At the session of the county court held last Tuesday the following matters were heard before Judge Gaynor: The hearing on claims filed against the estate of the late G. S. Biron adjourned to June 19th.

Geo. Hannu was appointed administrator of the estate of Eugene Ladue, deceased.

In the estate of John Arpin, deceased, final account of the executors allowed and order made discharging the executors and sureties.

Petition for probate of the will of Thomas Paine Fed.

In the estate of A. Huntington, deceased, claims filed were passed upon and allowed.

On the Way to France.

Dr. A. L. Ridgman, received a letter this week from his son, Earl, written on the U. S. S. Buffalo, May 13th, and mailed at Fayal, Azores Islands. Earl says: "I am on the auxiliary cruiser, Buffalo, on our way to the Azores Islands. We expect to reach there the 15th. I was transferred from the Franklin at Norfolk, Va., to the Buffalo. From Norfolk we went to South America via Havana and Kingston, Jamaica. From the Azores

we go to Gibraltar where we coal up, then we strike north to Lisbon, Portugal, Southampton, England, then away north to the "Land of the Midnight Sun," then south to Copenhagen, Christiania, Stockholm, Kiel, Germany, and to Havre, France, where we stay from July 21st until August 3. The stay at Havre will give everyone on board a chance to see the exposition at Paris. We make our own fresh water and ice on this ship. The Buffalo's crew consists of 700 men, is 485 feet long and draws 23 feet of water. We go from Havre to Gibraltar again to receive further orders. They say we will be ordered home and each entitled to a 15 days furlough. I may come home then. I do not think we will be ordered home, but will be sent to the Philippines. We have not seen sight of land for eighteen days."

County Convention.

The Democratic County convention for the purpose of electing eight delegates to the Democratic State convention to be held at Milwaukee, June 12th, which convention will name delegates to the Democratic National convention, was held at the city hall in Marshfield last Thursday.

The convention was called to order by L. M. Nash, chairman of the Democratic County committee.

Adam Paulus acted as chairman and R. G. Sherwood as secretary of this convention.

A committee of three on credentials was appointed by the chair, who reported a full representation either by proxy or in person.

The following delegates were elected to the state convention:

L. M. Nash, D. D. Conway, Grand Rapids; A. E. Gerner, Dexterville; J. P. Kraemer, Lincoln; A. G. Pankow, John Juno, Marshfield; Joseph Rick, Sigel; Philip Ruplinger, Jr., town of Marshfield.

The delegates were requested to vote for D. L. Plummer, of Wausau, and Geo. B. Hilton, of Oshkosh, as delegates at large to the National Democratic convention.

A resolution was adopted giving the delegates present from Wood county to the state convention the power to cast the vote of all absent delegates.

Those who attended the convention from this city were, W. H. Reeves, W. E. Whelan, L. M. Nash, R. G. Sherwood and D. D. Conway.

Kulinski, Joseph Zimmerman, John Meyers, Chas. Corcoran, Mike and Percy Dolan, Albert Van de Leigaaf, and the Misses Vera Menier, Pauline Minto, Katie Kaye, Angel Barrett, Emma Schacht, Jennie Kuntz, Della Sibley, Antonia Kobs, Annie Smith, Marceline Hansen, Anna Baumburg, Anna Belot, Rosie Freda, Frances Haskinski, Lenore McCarthy, Annie Tomcek, Amelia Surprison, Celia Valczak.

Residence Burned.

The residence of James Canning, located in the northern part of this city, was nearly destroyed by fire last Thursday forenoon. When the fire started neither Mr. or Mrs. Canning were at home, the former being at the barn and the latter at a neighbor's. The fire was first discovered by Mrs. Canning when returning home. It started in the upper story, but in what manner is not known. The fire company was necessarily slow in getting there on account of the engine team being at work on the west side streets, and when they did arrive the whole second story was destroyed, together with a portion of the lower story. Two streams of water were quickly put to play on the burning building and in a short time the fire was under control. They succeeded in saving most of the household effects. The loss is estimated at about $2,000, fully covered by insurance.

New Mill at Nekoosa.

W. E. Ule & Co. of this city have secured the contract for erecting a new building at the Nekoosa paper mills. The structure will be built of stone and brick, 144x160 feet, two stories in height. A new paper machine will also be put in and the above named company will build the brick arches for the machine track. There will also be a large amount of repairing to be done about the mill so that the Ules will probably be busily engaged there the rest of the season.—Stevens Point Journal.

Bishop Messmer Coming.

On Sunday, June 17, the congregation of St. Peter & Paul's church will have the happiness of having the Right Rev. S. G. Messmer, of Green Bay, in their midst. The Bishop will say the eight o'clock mass and preach during the high mass at ten o'clock, at which time the pastor, Rev. Father Van Roosmalen, will be the celebrant. The confirmation services will take place in the afternoon at three o'clock when about 200 will be confirmed.

A Good Show.

The Wm. Owen company gave an exceptionally good show at the opera house on Thursday evening and was greeted by a good house in spite of the threatening weather. Mr. Owen's reputation as an entertainer is so well established that his name is all that is necessary to guarantee the people a first class theater.

RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

NINE WEST SIDE GRADUATES.

"Culture is Character" Pronounced at the Grand Opera House Last Night Amidst an Array of Youth and Beauty.

The eighth annual commencement exercises of the west side high school were held at the Grand opera house last evening. Nearly every seat in the house was occupied. The house was beautifully decorated with evergreens, plants and flowers. At the right of the stage the class motto, "Culture is Character" shone out in gilt letters on a black ground of evergreens, and at the left of the stage a large American flag hung, with the letters, "Class of 1900" in gilt. The graduates and Prof. Harmon L. Van Dusen sat about the stage in a semicircle. The exercises opened with a medley by Hirzy's orchestra, followed by an invocation by the Rev. B. J. H. Shaw, of the First Congregational church. The music was furnished entirely by home talent, a greeting song being rendered by the Misses Amy Carrington, Mattie Brouson, Eva Jones, Mabel Marcean, Edith Getchall, Myrtle Kellogg, Alice Alter and Belle Voyer.

Katherine Fries was the first graduate to speak, and she gave an interesting oration entitled "The Landing of the Pilgrims."

Agnes Abolone Johnson delivered an oration upon the modern novel, and it was a finely worded effort, spoken in a clear, unflattering voice and much appreciated by the audience.

Clara Duncan was the next speaker and she gave an oration on "Home Influence" in a manner highly pleasing to those present.

"The Spanish-American War" by Charles W. Kellner; "William E. Gladstone" by Mary Isabelle Marshall; "The Anglo Saxon" by Seth W. Jones; "The Woman of To-day" by Louise B. Noetzel; "John Ruskin" by Viola Sheldon Garrison; "Universal Peace" by Leonard E. Smith, were all delivered in a masterly manner, and the graduates are all deserving of much credit for the way they handled their respective orations.

During the exercises, piano solos were rendered by the Misses Myrtle Kellogg, Nellie Steib and Nellie Schnabel, a 1 of which were highly appreciated by the audience.

Prof. Harmon L. Van Dusen presented the class with diplomas, which he accompanied by well chosen words of recommendation and timely remarks, after which the evening's entertainment concluded with a march by Hirzy's orchestra.

TWO MORE DEATHS.

Since our last issue two more deaths have occurred in our midst.

ELLA KELLNER.

The death of Miss Ella Kellner, only daughter of ex-Mayor and Mrs. P. E. Kellner, occurred at her home in this city Monday, June 4, 1900, at about 11:20 o'clock in the forenoon.

Miss Kellner had been ill for nearly two years, and although at times she was thought to be getting better, she gradually grew worse until death came to claim her. That dread disease, consumption, had fastened its hold upon her young life, and notwithstanding everything possible was done to prolong her life, she passed peacefully away into life everlasting.

The deceased was 15 years, 10 months and 18 days old at the time of her death. She was born in this city, and attended our city schools until her health began to fail.

The funeral services were held at the home last Wednesday afternoon, Rev. P. A. Nimils, of the M. E. church, and Rev. B. J. H. Shaw, of the First Congregational church, officiating, and the remains were laid at rest in Forest Hill cemetery. The pall bearers were: Elmer Glass, Sidney Denis, Robert Nash, Ben Smart, Lloyd Moore and James Hamilton, and the following young ladies, schoolmates of the deceased, acted as ribbon bearers: Myrtle Kellogg, Beulah Chandos, Maude Akey, Georgia Kellogg, Isabelle Marshall and Nellie Steib.

The relatives have the heartfelt sympathy of all in this their sad bereavement.

AGNES FINLAY

Miss Agnes Finlay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Finlay, highly respected residents of the town of Saratoga, died at her home in that town last Monday, of consumption, aged 26 years. Miss Finlay was a popular young lady and well known in this city where she had a host of friends who will miss her greatly. The funeral services were held from the Catholic church last Wednesday forenoon and the remains were laid at rest in Calvary cemetery.

road, is entitled to an institute, provided it is located in a farming district and has a good hall in which a meeting can be held.

Farmers should talk this matter up with their neighbors, and if the sentiment seems in favor of an institute for their town they should write us at once and their request will receive prompt attention.

Council Proceedings.

Council Room, June 5th, 1900. Council met in regular session. Mayor Goggins presiding. Aldermen present: Wood, Lutz, Brazau, Reiland, Kruger, Pratt, Bundy, Otto, Anthofer, Kellogg, Oberbeck, Schnabel, Rossier, Hill and Boles. Absent: Farish.

Minutes of the previous meeting read and approved.

The committee, to whom was referred the matter of library building, reported recommending that the Twin City Electric Co. be requested to put in a meter and that the city pay for said light at meter rates. Report adopted.

The street committee reported that they had authorized the digging of a ditch from the county jail to Franklin street. Report adopted.

A petition was presented asking for sewer from Dr. Boorman's corner north along on French street, same was referred to street committee.

Petition presented asking the city to put in a passable condition by widening and stumping the road running west from the west line of Sec. 15 to Milwaukee street being the road running east and west along the north side of the Wm. Corcoran place.

Same was referred to street committee to report on at the next meeting. The following petition was presented:

Grand Rapids, Wis., June 5, 1900.

To The Honorable Mayor and Common Council of Grand Rapids, Wisconsin:—

God bless! The Ladies' Advancement Association, by their committee on public improvements, would respectfully call your attention to the desirability of cleaning rubbish from the following localities on the East side:—

First, On the street near Farish's lumber yard, better known as the old Hopp house, to remove machinery, stumps, etc.

Second, The city lot next to John E. Daly's drug store.

Third, Lot next to Baker's furniture store.

Fourth, The river bank below the bridge to Williams' island.

Fifth, The river bank above from the Congregational church to Mr. Lutz's old brewery.

Sixth, Complaints come from people in regard to shavings which are hauled from the pulp mill to the Grand Rapids Table Co., as they are scattered along the street, and on to the lawns, etc.

Seventh, The old fence on the west side of the city lot near the county jail should be removed.

WEST SIDE.

First, Along the St. Paul switch from the Centralia fire house to the Jackson flouring mill, containing rubbish, stumps, logs, brick and sewer pipe.

Second, Along the Green Bay track from one crossing to the other, everything is dumped and looks badly from the railroad.

Third, Shavings being hauled from the Mackinnon Mfg. company's plant to the Twin City Electric plant, are scattered along the street and on the lawns in the vicinity thereof.

Fourth, The streets back and on the side of the planing mill contain a large quantity of rubbish and also stumps that ought to be removed. It also would improve the general appearance of our streets if the owners would move the wagons, carriages, bicycle frames, etc., from the streets.

Some ordinances ought to be enacted to prevent parties from dumping rubbish along the banks of the river. It is understood that the city has a dumping ground for such material, and this ought to be where such material should be deposited.

Respectfully submitted,

Mrs. W. T. Jones,

Chairman of the Committee.

Saunders' referred to Aldermen: Brazau, Pratt, and Rossier with power to enforce and grant the relief prayed for.

The ordinance committee was instructed to draw a proper ordinance providing a dumping place for rubbish and garbage with penalty attached for dumping elsewhere.

The city attorney made a report on the bill of A. L. Fontaine. He further reported on the opening up of a certain street in 5th ward as follows:

To The Honorable, The Mayor and Common Council of the City of Grand Rapids: The undersigned city attorney, to whom was referred the petition to lay out a certain street running between the premises owned by Herman Wadke and Albert Hahn connecting French street with the road leading to Rudolph, to ascertain who owns the land between the said premises of Herman Wadke and Albert Hahn, reports as follows:

It appears from the manner in which the premises of Albert Hahn and Herman Wadke were conveyed and also all other premises adjoining said proposed road as conveyed by the original owner of government lot No. three (3), section No. eight (8), township six (6) east and also by Sargent & Philcox's recorded plat of the city of Centralia that the land between the premises owned by Herman Wadke and Albert Hahn has been dedicated for the purpose of a street being a continuation of the street between the premises owned by Adolph Miller and August Krahle so as to connect French street with the road leading to Rudolph.

Such a dedication is sufficient and the street committee would be authorized at any time they determined to open up said street and put the same in passable condition.

Dated May 23rd, 1900.

W. E. WHEELAN,

City Attorney.

UNCLE SAM'S SAVINGS BANK.

A NEW USE FOR THE POSTAL MONEY ORDER DEPARTMENT.

The Convenient and Safe Means Offered by the Government for Depositing Money One May Buy a Money Order Payable to Himself.

The money order department of the post office is fast becoming the people's bank. Every afternoon the depositors line up in front of the post office window of the big office at Ninth and Walnut streets, just as they do before the receiving teller's window in the banks. The line is not as long in the post office, however, because the new system which makes this department of the government a safe and convenient bank has been in existence only a few months.

One who has money to deposit goes to the post office and fills out a blank application, making the order payable to himself. The money goes into the funds of the government and the depositor keeps the receipt to show that he has deposited money in the post office. The receipt takes the place of a check in the bank. This privilege of making a money order payable to "self," or to anyone in the same city as the purchaser, was granted by the government only last fall, and this new system makes it possible for the people to use the money order department as a depository for their savings. The new plan is working well. Already the Kansas city post office has about half a dozen depositors daily, and the average deposit is $10.00. The deposits are made in sums of $5.00 or more. The present money order rates make it less costly to deposit money in large amounts than in small.

In addition to the regular charge, two cents is collected on each order for war revenue. IT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE.

The government, as a bank, has no great and overwhelming advantage over private institutions—it is absolutely safe. Banks may fail, but the government is as solid as a rock. Money deposited in Uncle Sam's bank is as safe as Uncle Sam's lives, and he has shown no signs of falling health. The deposit may remain in the money order department for many years, but the receipt is good for always. Money deposited in the post office is as safe as bank checks do. One who loses his money order receipt may go to the office where he bought the order and at any time get a duplicate receipt. When the depositor wishes to withdraw any of his account he may do so by presenting his money order.

A money order may be used, too, like a check. A man who holds an order payable to himself may pay his bill with it. Uncle Sam's bank is a money order bank, and the holder may sign it over to anyone to whom he wishes to pay money, and this person may take the order to the post office and receive cash for it. In this way the post office has another office of the banks—the transfer of money on paper.

There are fourteen stations in Kansas City now where money orders may be bought. These are distributed in various parts of the city, so that there is a post office bank near almost every home. Banks close at 3 P. M., but the money order department of the post office is open until 9 o'clock at night.

THE GOVERNMENT WOULD INCREASE IT. "Most of our depositors now," said Mr. Collins, chief clerk of the post office, "are housewives." We carry deposits for theatrical people. I know of one circus rider who often has as much as $5,000 at one time in the money order department. She makes these orders payable to herself, and whenever she needs cash she presents an order and gets her money. I think when it becomes more generally known that money may be deposited with Uncle Sam in this way the number of orders will increase. I found that in the post office many people in Kansas City are using the post office as a bank, and I have no way of ascertaining the amounts of their savings, because we keep no ledger. I do know, however, that the post office is becoming a money order bank here, and has been increasing very rapidly. The yearly increase is about 20 per cent. In 1899 the business amounted to $1,514,000. The year before we handled $1,342,000. A part of this is due to the fact that the business is so new that it has not yet become a habit of the people. The general rules covering this branch of the service are much less stringent now than formerly. It has always been the rule that one who received a money order could not get cash for it until the post office had received a letter from the post office which issued the order. This rule has been modified for the convenience of the public. It is now possible to cash a money order at the post office where it was issued, and the cashier will cash it for you. This is a great convenience to the holder. It is no longer necessary to delay payment until the receipt of the letter of advice.

TAKES THE PLACE OF DRAUGHTS. "The money order has begun to usurp the place of the bank draft. Under the new rules a money order is as good as a bank draft. The money order is simply a draft on the treasury of the United States. A money order issued in Kansas City and drawn on the office at Chicago is payable in St. Louis or any other city.

"Business firms which have branch houses in other cities are taking advantage of this new system. For instance, suppose that a New York firm has a branch in Kansas City. It may draw a money order from its Kansas City branch office by a money order drawn on the Kansas City post office. It is no longer necessary for the Kansas city branch to have cash on hand, and the money sent to the headquarters in New York. The money order itself may be sent, and when it is presented at the New York office it will be honored there. This is not only a great convenience to the holder, but it also saves the expense of sending a money order by draft, and repaying the money to New York."

Rapidly Developing Northern Wisconsin

The settler and manufacturer who have located in the northern portion of the Badger State, are developing and improving that immense tract of rich country very rapidly. Tilters of the soil are coming in and new factories are going up. There is reason for this. The quality and quantity of iron ore, clay, kaolin, marl and timber lands, tell the secret. Nature yields its riches to those who toil. Opportunities are still plentiful for much of the rich undeveloped land is awaiting the settler and manufacturer. It can be obtained on easy terms and at low figures.

THE WISCONSIN CENTRAL RY. The pioneer road of the northern section of Wisconsin, affords cheap and excellent transportation facilities, thus opening the markets of the entire country to the products of that section. Captain Brabazon

BY B. M. CROKER

A Military Romance of South Africa

The crowd was hushed and silent as they looked at the man who had just been killed. He was a young man, with a face that was as bright as the sun, and a body that was as strong as iron. He was a soldier, and he was a hero. He was a man who had been killed in the line of duty, and he was a man who had been killed in the line of duty.

"Yes, I'm going too fast," said her companion, apologetically. "Hold on a bit, and fix up your hair," which was hanging down below her waist in one thick, shining plait. A few vigorous twists made it once more a compact mass at the nape of her neck, and, turning to her companion, who was engaged in tying up a bleeding hand with his handkerchief, she said, very humbly, "Miles, will you forgive me for last night?" tears swelling up into her eyes as she spoke.

"For heaven's sake," nervously, "don't cry, Esme; of course I will; it was all the fault of my own vile temper; I'm afraid that I am an awfully jealous fellow—worse luck; and I can't bear to see you speaking to or noticing anyone. That's the truth in plain English."

"No, no, no! It was all my doing," interrupted the young lady, not to be outdone. "I was provoking; I was in a rage; I would have told you, and I will tell you, although it is not my secret—"

"Then don't," he exclaimed, emphatically; "never mind it now; if it is another person's secret, keep it. I know I can trust you, Esme," determined to show how ungratified he could be, and to make amends for his foolish suspicions—for Esme's wild, distracted appearance had told him more than her lips had ever uttered, and he felt that he could afford to be generous.

"And what can I say to you for risking your life, just now?" she said, tremulously.

"Pooh! nothing; it was not half so bad as you thought; any other fellow would have done the same."

"And pray why did they not?"

"Those lubberly sets of boatmen, afraid to wet their feet, choked them off. I would not insult a brave race of men by calling them sailors."

"But it was touch and go, Miles; an old naval officer said so. We never expected to see you back, and you went to please me. How am I to thank you? What can I say?"

"That's easily answered," he replied, moving a few inches nearer to her. "I'll tell you what you can say—say 'Yes!'"

This was a strange place in which to decide such a momentous question, under the lee of an old fishing smack, in the midst of a high gale which was blowing about the sand and spray, and almost drowning every sound but the thunder of the waves breaking on the shingle. Esme, leaning her back against the boat, bareheaded, endeavoring to repair the elastic of her hat, which she held in her hand. As her cousin leaned over and suggested this one word, the color returned like a flood to her pale face, and rushed up to the very roots of the little curls, which were frolicking merrily about her forehead in the breeze. For fully two minutes she made no reply, but kept still mechanically twisting the elastic in her hand, not once raising her eyes, but her color and her quivering lips betokened that she was not absolutely indifferent.

"Well, Esme," exclaimed her cousin, a little impatiently. "I suppose you know the old proverb, 'Silence gives consent.' What am I to think?" he asked, with impetuous insistence.

Esme made no verbal reply to this somewhat impetuous insistence, but after a moment's hesitation she put out her hand very shyly.

"Dearest," he said, seizing it eagerly, but almost ere he had touched it she snatched it hastily from his grasp, exclaiming, in a hurried whisper,

"Oh, here are the Clippertons?"

CHAPTER XI.

Barely a month of the six remained, and if Miles and Esme were to be married, there was no time to lose. There were settlements to be drawn up, the trousseau to be set in hand, and many weighty questions to be decided. Miles talked over these matters with Miss Jane, the evening after he had been accepted by his cousin and between them they persuaded Mrs. Brabazon to have a quiet wedding, and to let the two girls go and stay with Annie, and choose the trousseau with her assistance. Miss Jane herself was also to be squeezed into Mrs. Curzon's bandbox of a house, but such an important person as Mrs. Brabazon would have to go to a neighboring private hotel. Indeed, Mrs. Brabazon loved not her step-daughter, and took up her abode close to Chesham street, with a useful, fashionable friend, and was elaborately amiable to Miles and Esme, but disposed to be very arbitrary about the trousseau, and close-fisted with the necessary funds. London was empty, but to our young ladies from the country, even in September it looked remarkably full, and they enjoyed themselves immensely. Esme, of course, especially. She had the daily society of Miles, who loaded her with flowers and gifts, and anticipated her most capricious whims.

A splendid diamond ring adorned her third finger. A diamond butterfly and pair of solitary earrings followed. It was useless to endeavor to restrain him. He declared to Esme that this being his own money, and not their mutual property, he had every right to spend it as he pleased. He had all the pleasure of taking her to a theater for the first time, of introducing her to Westminster Abbey, Hampton Court, and the parks, and he was a pattern of patience with regard to Bond street and Regent street, allowing her to flatter her pretty, straight nose against as many shop windows as she pleased, and to stare in at hats and costumes in a perfectly unbridled manner.

As she and Miles were walking in Piccadilly one afternoon they met Capt. Brabazon rushing out of a bootmaker's, evidently in a violent hurry.

"Hello, Brabazon," he cried, "what on earth are you doing up in the village at this time of year? Why are you not out among the turnips?" Miss Brabazon, raising his hat as he recognized Esme, said, "how do you do?"

"You are off next week to the Cape, are you not?" said Miles.

"Yes, by Jove, on Thursday; not much time to lose. I'm trying to get my kit together."

Miles glanced at his beautiful fiancée, and was amazed to see that she had become very pale, and that her lips were quivering strangely.

"Your second battalion is going out, too, I see by this morning's paper. No chance of meeting you out there, eh? Well, good-by, I must be off; time is money. Good-by, Miss Brabazon."

Next morning the Brabazon ladies, young and old, departed from the metropolis with loads of luggage, and Miles was left to put in a whole week, intervening before his wedding day, as best he could. The fourth day of this time had passed, and he was bent upon going down to Portsmouth to see an old friend of his to the Cape. He met his chum at the Pier Hotel, where they lunched together, and then sallied forth to the dockyard. The trooper was alongside, and a regiment of lancers in the act of embarkings. Horses, abstruse, and otherwise, were being put on board, and crowds were watching the proceedings with the gravest interest. Miles and his friend, after inspecting the latter gentleman's cabin, which was one of those known as a "horse-box," ascended to the upper regions, and began to pace the deck together and have a few last words.

"I rather envy you fellows going out," said Miles, nodding his head at the crowd of soldiers between decks; "and only der circumstances I would be going, too."

"You mean matrimony," said the other, smiling. "And when are you to be told off?"

"The day after to-morrow."

"Married men are best at home; it plays the deuce with a fellow having to leave a wife or a sweetheart. I've always done my level best to keep out of such matters. Look round now on this pack of wretched women, crying their eyes out; come to say good-by, and take their last look at fellows they will never see again. You're a lucky chap not to have to leave your sweetheart like that poor fellow over there under the lee of the shed. Look! it's a desperate bad case; the girl seems heartbroken. I don't believe she'll ever let him go."

Miles glanced indifferently over in the direction indicated, and beheld a tall, handsome young sergeant of lancers, who was evidently making a brave struggle to keep his feelings well in hand, and a girl with her back toward him, leaning on his arm in a perfect abandon of grief. The lance appeared to be trying to soothe and comfort her.

"She looks like a lady," said Maj. Vere, speculatively; "and I would not wonder if she was a pretty girl in the bargain."

"It's rather a shame to watch them," returned Miles; "and hard lines that they have to say good-by to one another at all, poor girl!"

"A fellow-feeling makes us wondrous kind," quoted the other, with a laugh. "There was a time, old chap, when you would have called them a pair of fools."

"Ah! I—" Whatever else he was going to say remained frozen on his lips, for the girl had suddenly turned her face toward them; he could see it plainly now, and one glance at those familiar features was enough. It was the face of the girl who was to be his wife the day but one following, the face of his cousin, Esme Brabazon. Esme, pale and distracted, her eyes swollen with crying, but still Esme.

And he also recognized Miss Jane's own maid, Mrs. Eliza Clark, pacing up and down at a discreet distance. In one instantaneous searching flash everything was revealed to his mind, everything accounted for now. The meeting at the gate, the photograph, Esme's unaccountable interest in this particular regiment; but all Miss Jane's solemn asseverations were lies, and her mere were partners in a league and covenant to deceive and delude him. In an instant this had passed like fire through his brain; he felt as if he were going to choke, and dizzy with rage and bewilderment, and for a moment the dockyard and sky seemed to reel before him, but he clutched the balustrade with a viselike grasp, and nerved himself to look once more; as he gazed with livid face and dilated eyes he comprehended that the hour of parting had come.

Esme flung her arms around the sergeant's neck and kissed him, and clung to him in a wild abandon of despair, and as if she would never release him, and he, Miles Brabazon, was looking on quite sane, quite in his right mind; it was no delusion, no dream. At last the lance, who seemed a good deal moved, beckoned to Clark to approach and take charge of her young lady, and Esme made no resistance, but allowed herself to be led away toward a fly that was evidently waiting for them at a short distance. But then she turned and looked back; it was fatal; she was doing the same to a second, and had rushed to him and clasped him once more in an agonized embrace. At last, with an heroic effort, she managed to leave him, and with her face buried in her hands, was instantly seized upon by Clark, who taking her arm in a potent manner, and shaking her head away, seemingly bowed down to the very earth with grief. The whole scene had a horrible fascination for Miles; not a look, not a gesture had escaped him; and now that it was all over, now that his betrothed had passed weeping from his sight, he turned his whole attention to her late companion, who was coming up the gangway, pale, indeed, but not so pale as the man who had just been killed. He was a young man, with a face that was as bright as the sun, and a body that was as strong as iron. He was a soldier, and he was a hero. He was a man who had been killed in the line of duty, and he was a man who had been killed in the line of duty.

"Tell me," he said to Maj. Vere, as he pulled him by the sleeve, "what is that fellow of yours coming on board now—there, the tall one—?" pointing with his hand toward the man who was coming on board now—there, the tall one—? pointing with his hand toward the man who was coming on board now—there, the tall one—?

"Oh, that?" returned the other, looking at the man who was coming on board now—there, the tall one—? looking at the man who was coming on board now—there, the tall one—? looking at the man who was coming on board now—there, the tall one—?

"What chap is our young spirit of nobility, as some will have it, anyway, he goes by the name of Lord Brown, or something of the sort. Did you see the girl? Hello, Brabazon, what are you, old chap?" suddenly looking around at his friend, and struck by his altered appearance, his drawn and ghastly face.

"It's nothing," said the other, impatiently. "It will go off directly; don't mind me. As a gentleman, you said, 'hardly back to Lord Brown, a gentleman?'"

"Yes, or, yes, and a very smart fellow. Safe to get his commission in a few months; the girl was evidently in his own rank of life; come down to say good-by under the rose. I saw her at the station, and was struck by her air; she was awfully pretty, and looked quite frightened among all the soldiers. Never saw a troop train before, I'll swear. I've a notion I've seen her somewhere; I wish I could remember when, but I'm sure I've seen her," throwing back his head and closing his eyes, "but where? Oh, becoming startled, 'I know,' as it flashed into his mind that he had seen the young lady at Sandborough hall, where she had been pointed out as Brabazon's fiancée. 'Brabazon, old fellow, what can I say to you?' surveying him with a look of astonishment, 'I see it all! No wonder you look queer.'"

"Say nothing about what you have seen," returned his companion; "keep your own counsel, that's all you can do for me," wringing his hand, "and don't keep me," in answer to the other's expressive face. "I must go," once more shaking hands, and then hurrying blindly, headlong, down the gangway.

Miles was perfectly indifferent as to what anyone thought of him, as he hailed a hansom, and told the driver to go like mad to the railway station. He might catch Esme, and two words were better than twenty letters. Thank goodness his eyes had been opened in time; it was not too late—he was not married yet.

The express was about to start, the engine was emitting great clouds of white steam, the platform was crisscrossed, as, pitching the driver a sovereign, he dashed into the station, and looked into one carriage, another, and another.

Ah! here she was at last, close to the door, with her back to the engine, her handkerchief to her eyes, actually crying still; Clark, in an opposite corner, holding herself ostentatiously aloof from her broken-hearted companion, and reveling in the contemplation of flaming and gorgeous advertisements, of ships and turpins and furniture.

"Miles!" gasped Esme, in a tone of dismay as her cousin threw the carriage door violently open and stood before her as astonished gaze.

"Yes, Miles," he echoed, in a voice she was unaccustomed with, bitter sarcasm struggling with some potent emotion. "An unexpected pleasure, is it not?"

"But what has happened?" she faltered, treacherously, justly alarmed by the expression of his face, and awed by some vague, undefined dread. "What brings you here?" vainly striving to master her long drawn sob.

"A mere trifle," in a voice that shook in spite of himself. "Nothing to speak of. I was only on board the troop train just now and had the honor of witnessing the affecting parting between you and your lanceur friend. Everything is accounted for now, your flattering interest in the regiment included. I'm a lucky fellow to have found you out in time, am I not? Needless to tell you that, as far as I'm concerned, the money may go, and I've only one word to say to you, the word 'Good-by!'"

A Wife's Signal.

Nervous housewives whose husbands frequently bring home company to dinner without preliminary warning often worry in their secret hearts for fear there may not be food enough to supply the unexpected guests. A matron living in one of the prettiest suburban residences in West Philadelphia, whose husband persists in bringing home guests at the most inopportune times, has hit upon a happy expedient to meet possible emergencies.

In passing any dishes at the table of which there may be a limited supply the hostess makes a point to mention the enigmatical letters "F. H. B." in such a manner as not to attract the attention of the guests around the board. Immediately the members of the family are aware of the circumstances and discreetly parake very lightly, if at all, of the viands in question. The secret of the three letters was solved a few days ago, and the hostess afterward laughingly confessed her little scheme. "F. H. B." in this instance stands for "family hold back"—Boston Traveler.

The Girl with the Hammer.

The advantages of a substantial education for women are demonstrated with peculiar force by an item which we take from the Bangor News.

A barn in Aroostook went unsold because the farmer who owned it was too infirm to climb to the roof, while one of his sons had gone to the war in the Philippines, and the other to the Klondike.

The other day, however, the farmer's only daughter came home from the normal school, and skinned the barn as well as any man in town could hereabouts, and she didn't even pound her fingers, either.

We All Think So.

A Philadelphia exchange gives the following opinion of a small girl. The words express what many older people must have felt.

In the waiting-room of a large railroad station sat a grave and disabled little girl of perhaps 5 years. Presently a man in railway uniform came in and bowed out a long list of perfectly unrecognizable names. The little girl looked at him disapprovingly. Then she looked at her mother and said:

BURY A WHOLE FAMILY.

Funeral of the Persons Killed at Forest Junction.

Mr. and Mrs. William Broehm and Their Children Are Laid at Rest.

Kandana, Wis., June 4. (Special.)—The largest funeral ever witnessed in this part of the country was that of the five dead members of the Broehm family. The dead were laid in their last resting place at the cemetery near their home, and about one and a half miles from the little hamlet of Forest Junction. Over 200 towns were in the procession. The funeral was held at the only Methodist church in the place, Zion German Methodist. The funeral was held at the only Methodist church in the place, Zion German Methodist.

The scene was most impressive and very sad. The parents of the dead father and mother seem almost dazed with the grief in which they were so suddenly plunged.

The whole countryside for many miles around came to take part in the sad pageant, showing their sympathy. At the burial of the Broehm family, the little church at Forest Junction was crowded. The funeral was held at the only Methodist church in the place, Zion German Methodist.

WORSER THAN WASTED.

Prodigality with Which Public Money is Spent by Ferdinand W. Peck.

Washington, D. C., June 4. (Special.)—The reckless extravagance of Ferdinand W. Peck, committee-general to the Paris exposition, has again been emphasized. His selection of "favorite sons" for lucrative positions, his generous allowance to all comers for traveling expenses, and the prodigality with which he has distributed government funds is probably without parallel.

Secretary Hay Saturday transmitted to the Senate, in response to the request of Senator Jones of Arkansas for information, a detailed list of employees, their salaries, and the amounts disbursed. But even this report, while intended to be explicit, is evasive. The expenditure of large sums is without classification and the information is thrown together in a heap. Mr. Hay, in his letter of transmittal, quotes from Mr. Peck that in the selection of employees "geographical residence and party affiliation have been purely incidental."

Curiously enough, the statement submitted only covers the first three months of the present year, thus practically ignoring the details which Senator Jones sought.

The enormous extravagance of last year is what the Senate desired to have explained. This is not mentioned, either by Mr. Peck or Mr. Hay.

The disbursements on account of the Paris exposition committee of the first quarter of this year are sufficiently startling. The total sum paid out for purposes from January 1 to March 31 was $211,583, or at the rate of $1,000,000 a year. The total expenditure to date for the exposition will aggregate $308,283. The unexpended balance in the treasury is $376,628.

An allowance of traveling expenses was made for almost every employee under Mr. Peck's control. These range in sums from $25 to $1200 for the committee-general. During the months of March and April a bonus of $20 per month was paid each agent, in addition to his salary of $50 per month. It is not explained why this generous donation was made.

In the long list of employees appear many favorite sons. Several are: F. W. Peck, Jr., $5000 per year and traveling expenses.

C. S. Crowninshield, son of Admiral Crowninshield, $2000 per year. During the quarter just ended Crowninshield drew $245 for traveling expenses.

Mary S. Logan, a niece of Mrs. John A. Logan, $1200 per year, and she drew $75 in traveling expenses.

Young Brackett, whose father is secretary of the commission, is also well taken care of, and the name of Mr. Wilson, said to be the secretary of agriculture's son, figures conspicuously.

The report shows that during the past three months $23,200 was allowed for traveling expenses to persons not connected with the commission. These allowances were made at the special request of Commissioner Peck for alleged services indirectly rendered. The nature of these services is not indicated.

It also seems that transportation tickets were furnished at the request of Mr. Peck to the tune of $5000. This was not charged to individual accounts and there is nothing to identify the beneficiaries.

Miscellaneous expenses for the last three months aggregate the astounding sum of $23,004. These, the report says, include newspaper, press clippings, photographs and card engraving. This sum is all chargeable to work of this kind performed in the United States. For the same purposes in Paris, the separate charge of $5333 is made.

An item of $1137 for office rent in New York, with $538 for furniture and incidentals, also appears.

Office rent in Chicago is credited with $2978, while office rent in Paris was but $1136. Furniture for the Chicago office cost $1336 and in Paris $1131.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

Frank P. Daly has been carrying his errand during the past week, the result of an accident which happened to him last Monday morning. The accident was very painful but has not hindered him from talking piano or chamber raising to the people.

Last fall I sprained my left hip while handling some heavy boxes. The doctor I called on said at first it was a slight strain and would soon be well, but it grew worse and the doctor then said I had rheumatism. It continued to grow worse and I could hardly get around to work. I went to a drug store and the druggist recommended me to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I tried it and one-half of a 50 cent bottle cured me entirely. I now recommend it to all my friends.—F. A. BANCROFT, Erie, Pa. For sale by Johnson & Hill Co.

Last week Mrs. Caroline Grotopski had Adam Beaster arrested for assault and battery, one of the evidences that the lady exhibited being a spot on the forehead where she had undoubtedly received a hard thump with some blunt instrument. Beaster pleaded guilty to the charge when brought before Justice Kromer on Monday but insisted on a jury trial and tried to prove by numerous witnesses that the injury was done to the lady in self defense. The jury, however, failed to see it in the same light and brought in a verdict of guilty. The justice imposed a fine of $5, which with the costs amounted to $52.75. W. J. Conway represented the state, and W. E. Wheelan the defendant. The case will be appealed to circuit court.

MARSHFIELD ITEMS.

The Marshfield News comes out this week with all home print, the publisher being compelled to adopt this method in order to accommodate his large advertising patronage. The paper presents a very creditable appearance and is nearly all set at home, there being very little plate matter used.

Amanda, wife of Wm. Arnet, died last Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the age of 23 years. Deceased was formerly Miss Amanda Rozette, of Arpin. The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon from the Methodist church.

The employees of the Marshfield Brewing company went out on a strike last Friday, their demand being an advance of $5 per month in wages.—the point was conceded and they went back to work.

Philip Adler, J. F. Deckert and Charles Liaster are preparing for an European tour this summer. They will take in the Paris exposition, and also visit other points of interest in the old world.

Henry Steinmetz died at Marshfield last Wednesday at the age of 79 years. Deceased was born in Germany and had been a resident of this county for the last eight years.

A good roads convention will be held in Marshfield next Wednesday for the purpose of organizing a county good roads association.

Marshfield is to have a new city hall, and plans are to be asked for the same, the cost of the building not to exceed $20,000.

GENERAL COUNTY.

John Pospisiel has 440 acres of land lying in the towns of Sherry and Carson, and taken altogether it makes a pretty fine farm. He is this season erecting a new barn, one of the largest in Wood county, it being 46x116 feet with 18 foot posts and will cost when completed $1,700. Besides this Mr. Pospisiel has constructed two cattle barns 31x74 feet, he having ninety-six head of cattle. The new main barn will hold 200 tons of hay, Jake Bord, of Vesper, has the contract for erecting the structure.

The Vesper creamery is receiving 4,000 pounds of milk a day now, and the prospects are that this amount will be increased. Mr. Otto seems to know how to make a success of this kind of an institution.

The two cheese factories located in the towns of Sigel and Seneca owned by the Johnson & Hill Co., are turning out 2,400 pounds a week. In consideration of the dry season this is a pretty good showing.

Beason & Anderson, of Vesper, have sold the property known as Camp No. 1 to Julius Kruger for $3,500. The sale also includes several forties of land.

A Card of Thanks.

I wish to say that I feel under lasting obligations for what Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has done for our family. We have used it in so many cases of coughs, lung troubles and whooping cough, and it has always given the most perfect satisfaction. We feel greatly indebted to the manufacturers of this remedy and wish them to please accept our hearty thanks.—Respectfully, Mrs. S. Dory, Des Moines, Iowa. For sale by Johnson & Hill Co. Druggist.

Prospective Match.

Fred Beell, the Marshfield wrestler, has received two challenges during the past week for matches. Some of the sporting fraternity of this city have expressed a desire to have a match held here and it is possible that this may be accomplished. The challenges received by Mr. Beell are from Ed. Adamson, of Indianapolis, and Berthold de Scheller, of Kansas City. Beell was defeated by Adamson in the first match but in the second match Beell came out ahead. Adamson offers to put up a side bet ranging anywhere from $250 to $2,000. Scheller was defeated by Beell in the only match they had, and Scheller wants to bet $200 that he can defeat the Marshfield boy. Both Scheller and Adamson are good men and a match with either one would be a very interesting affair.

Beell has done more or less training all summer and kept himself within the middle-weight limit and could go on the mat in as good condition as he ever was in a few days' time. Lovers of sport who are acquainted with Mr. Beell have always felt friendly toward the young man as he has always taken the best of care of himself and always been on the square. He neither uses alcoholic stimulants nor tobacco in any form and whenever he goes into a match has always gone in to win, so that his friends have the utmost confidence in him. It is probable, however, that Marshfield will put in a bid for a match with either man that Mr. Beell may decide to take on.

Would not Suffer so Again for Fifty Times its Price.

I awoke last night with severe pains in my stomach. I never felt so badly in all my life. When I came down to work this morning I felt so weak I could hardly work. I went to Miller & McCurdy's drug store and they recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It worked like magic and one dose fixed me all right. It certainly is the finest thing I ever used for stomach trouble. I shall not be without it in my home hereafter, for I should not care to endure the sufferings of last night again for fifty times its price.—G. H. WILSON, Liverman, Burgettstown, Washington Co., Pa. This remedy is for sale by Johnson & Hill Co.

A GOOD MEETING.

AFTER MORE MANUFACTORIES.

A Large and Enthusiastic Meeting of the Business Men's Association Last Monday Night.

A meeting of the Business Men's association was held at their rooms in the Daily block last Monday evening, at which time a large number of our progressive business men were in attendance.

The meeting was called for the purpose of discussing the factory question and to see what could be done in the way of getting new industries to locate in this city.

President E. P. Arpin read propositions from several different concerns desiring a location here, including a shoe factory, starch factory and a wood working machine factory. The propositions of each struck our business men as being quite reasonable and a majority favored getting them to locate among us. Upon motion the matter was referred to Ernest Oberbeck, John Schnabel and Geo. M. Hill committee on manufactures and industries, to investigate the matter more thoroughly and report at the next meeting.

A motion was made to discontinue the use of the present rooms provided the common council would grant the association the use of the city hall in which to hold future meetings. The motion was carried and a committee appointed to confer with the common council for that purpose.

Several minor matters were disposed of after which a lengthy discussion was had as to the best means of entertaining the editors on their visit here next month. A committee of three, consisting of E. P. Arpin, T. A. Taylor and Ernest Oberbeck, was appointed to confer with a like committee appointed by the Ladies Auxiliary to go ahead and make all necessary arrangements for the entertainment. Each gentleman present expressed his willingness to assist in whatever way desired by the joint committee in making the editorial entertainment a success in every particular.

It is earnestly desired and requested that each and every good citizen of Grand Rapids put forth his best endeavors and assist the committee in making preparations for this entertainment. This is a matter that should not be lightly thought of, as the editors are surely coming and when they arrive here we do not want it said that Grand Rapids is an iceberg, but instead we want it said by the editors when they return home that this city received them with open arms and their entertainment here was unequalled by any city along the Wisconsin river valley. Do not hold the opinion that this matter is one to be handled by our business men's association and the ladies auxiliary entirely, but make it a personal matter to all and do not wait for an invitation from these organizations to assist in this entertainment. Offer your services personally. The committee needs the help of all and if each individual will do a little, the bulk of the work will not fall so heavily upon the shoulders of a few. Let each one do something and will entertain the editors in a way that will give the city of Grand Rapids a reputation for hospitality and progressiveness that will long be remembered by our visitors.

T. A. Taylor is contemplating getting up a souvenir to be presented to each of our coming visitors in the shape of a portfolio of views of scenery and the several industries in and about this city, and states that the mill men have signified their willingness to subscribe to a fund for that purpose. The idea is a commendable one and Mr. Taylor should receive the encouragement necessary to go on with the work.

County Court.

At the session of the county court held last Tuesday the following matters were heard before Judge Gaynor:

The hearing on claims filed against the estate of the late G. S. Biron adjourned to June 19th.

Geo. Hamm was appointed administrator of the estate of Eugene Ladue, deceased.

In the estate of J. B. Taylor hearing on claims adjourned to June 12th. In the estate of S. L. Nason, deceased, order was made directing administrator to execute deeds to the several parties who hold land contracts.

Proof of will of John Echoff was made and letters of administration issued to Fred Echoff.

Order made directing sale of lands belonging to the minor heirs of Cornelia Deckert.

Letters of administration issued to Louis Shannock in estate of Martin Shannock, deceased.

In the estate of John Arpin, deceased, final account of the executors allowed and order made discharging the executors and sureties.

Petition for probate of the will of Thomas Paine filed.

In the estate of A. Huntington, deceased, claims filed were passed upon and allowed.

On the Way to France.

Dr. A. L. Ridgman, received a letter this week from his son, Earl, written on the U. S. S. Buffalo, May 13th, and mailed at Fayal, Azores Islands. Earl says: "I am on the auxiliary cruiser, Buffalo, on our way to the Azores Islands. We expect to reach there the 15th. I was transferred from the Franklin at Norfolk, Va., to the Buffalo. From Norfolk we went to South America via Havana and Kingston, Jamaica. From the Azores

we go to Gibraltar where we coal up; then we strike north to Lisbon, Portugal, Southampton, England, then away north to the "Land of the Midnight Sun," then south to Copenhagen, Christiania, Stockholm, Kiel, Germany, and to Harre, France, where we stay from July 21st until August 3. The stay at Harre will give everyone on board a chance to see the exposition at Paris. We make our own fresh water and ice on this ship. The Buffalo's crew consists of 700 men, is 458 feet long and draws 23 feet of water. We go from Harre to Gibraltar again to receive further orders. They say we will be ordered home and each entitled to a 15 days furlough. I may come home then. I do not think we will be ordered home, but will be sent to the Philippines. We have not seen sight of land for eighteen days."

County Convention.

The Democratic County convention for the purpose of electing eight delegates to the Democratic State convention to be held at Milwaukee, June 12th, which convention will name delegates to the Democratic National convention, was held at the city hall in Marshfield last Thursday.

The convention was called to order by L. M. Nash, chairman of the Democratic County committee.

Adam Paulus acted as chairman and R. G. Sherwood as secretary of this convention.

A committee of three on credentials was appointed by the chair, who reported a full representation either by proxy or in person.

The following delegates were elected to the state convention:

L. M. Nash, D. D. Conway, Grand Rapids; A. E. Gerner, Dexter; J. P. Kraemer, Lincoln; A. G. Pankow, John Juno, Marshfield; Joseph Rick, Sigel; Philip Ruplinger, Jr., town of Marshfield.

The delegates were requested to vote for D. L. Plummer, of Wausau, and Geo. B. Hilton, of Oshkosh, as delegates at large to the National Democratic convention.

A resolution was adopted giving the delegates present from Wood county to the state convention the power to cast the vote of all absent delegates.

Those who attended the convention from this city were, W. H. Reeves, W. E. Wheelan, L. M. Nash, R. G. Sherwood and D. D. Conway.

Received First Communion.

Last Sunday at the Catholic church, during solemn high mass at 8 o'clock, the following boys and girls received their first communion. The children had been diligently prepared, during the three months previous, for this solemn act by the Rev. Pastor, Father Van Roosmalen:

Kulinski, Joseph Zimmerman, John Meyers, Chas. Corcoran, Mike and Percy Dolan, Albert Van de Leigaaf, and the Misses Vera Menier, Pauline Mintz, Katie Kaye, Angel Barrett, Emma Schacht, Jennie Kuntz, Della Soley, Antonia Kobs, Annie Smith, Marceline Hansen, Anna Bamberg, Anna Belor, Rosie Freda, Frances Hanksinski, Lenore McCarthy, Annie Tomczyk, Amelia Surprison, Celia Valczask.

Residence Burned.

The residence of James Canning, located in the northern part of this city, was nearly destroyed by fire last Thursday forenoon. When the fire started either Mr. or Mrs. Canning were at home, the former being at the barn and the latter at a neighbor's. The fire was first discovered by Mrs. Canning when returning home. It started in the upper story, but in what manner is not known. The fire company was necessarily slow in getting there on account of the engine team being at work on the west side street, and when they did arrive the whole second story was destroyed, together with a portion of the lower story. Two streams of water were quickly put to play on the burning building and in a short time the fire was under control. They succeeded in saving most of the household effects. The loss is estimated at about $2,000, fully covered by insurance.

New Mill at Nekoosa.

W. E. Ule & Co. of this city have secured the contract for erecting a new building at the Nekoosa paper mills. The structure will be built of stone and brick, 14x166 feet, two stories in height. A new paper machine will also be put in and the above named company will build the brick arches for the machine track. There will also be a large amount of repairing to be done about the mill so that the Ules will probably be busily engaged there the rest of the season.—Stevens Point Journal.

Bishop Messmer Coming.

On Sunday, June 17, the congregation of St. Peter & Paul's church will have the happiness of having the Right Rev. S. G. Messmer, of Green Bay, in their midst. The Bishop will say the eight o'clock mass and preach during the high mass at ten o'clock, at which time the pastor, Rev. Father Van Roosmalen, will be the celebrant. The confirmation services will take place in the afternoon at three o'clock when about 200 will be confirmed.

A Good Show.

The Wm. Owen company gave an exceptionally good show at the opera house on Thursday evening and was greeted by a good house in spite of the threatening weather. Mr. Owen's reputation as an entertainer is so well established that his name is all that is necessary to guarantee the people a first class theater.

RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

NINE WEST SIDE GRADUATES.

"Culture is Character" Pronounced at the Grand Opera House Last Night Amidst an Array of Youth and Beauty.

The eighth annual commencement exercises of the west side high school were held at the Grand opera house last evening. Nearly every seat in the house was occupied. The house was beautifully decorated with evergreens, plants and flowers. At the right of the stage the class motto, "Culture is Character" shone out in gilt letters on a black ground of evergreens, and at the left of the stage a large American flag hung, with the letters "Class of 1900" in gilt. The graduates and Prof. Harmon L. Van Dusen sat about the stage in a semi-circle. The exercises opened with a melody by Hirzy's orchestra, followed by an invocation by the Rev. B. J. H. Shaw, of the First Congregational church. The music was furnished entirely by home talent, a greeting song being rendered by the Misses Amy Carrington, Mattie Bronson, Eva Jones, Mabel Marceau, Edith Gerschall, Myrtle Kellogg, Alice Alter and Belle Voyer.

Katherine Fries was the first graduate to speak, and she gave an interesting oration entitled "The Landing of the Pilgrims."

Agnes Abolone Johnson delivered an oration upon the modern novel, and it was a finely worded effort, spoken in a clear, unfaltering voice and much appreciated by the audience.

Clara Duncan was the next speaker and she gave an oration on "Home Influence" in a manner highly pleasing to those present.

"The Spanish-American War" by Charles W. Kellner; "William E. Gladstone" by Mary Isabelle Marshall; "The Anglo Saxon" by Seth W. Jones; "The Woman of Today" by Louise B. Noetzel; "John Ruskin" by Viola Sheldon Garrison; "Universal Peace" by Leonard E. Smith, were all delivered in a masterly manner, and the graduates are all deserving of much credit for the way they handled their respective orations.

During the exercises, piano solos were rendered by the Misses Myrtle Kellogg, Nellie Steib and Nellie Schnabel, a 1 of which were highly appreciated by the audience.

Prof. Harmon L. Van Dusen presided the class with diplomas, which he accompanied by well chosen words of recommendation and timely remarks, after which the evening's entertainment concluded with a march by Hirzy's orchestra.

TWO MORE DEATHS.

Since our last issue two more deaths have occurred in our midst.

ELLA KELLNER.

The death of Miss Ella Kellner, only daughter of ex-Mayor and Mrs. E. E. Kellner, occurred at her home in this city Monday, June 4, 1900, at about 11:20 o'clock in the forenoon.

Miss Kellner had been ill for nearly two years, and although at times she was thought to be getting better, she gradually grew worse until death came to claim her. That dread disease, consumption, had fastened its hold upon her young life, and notwithstanding everything possible was done to prolong her life, she passed peacefully away into life everlasting.

The deceased was 15 years, 10 months and 18 days old at the time of her death. She was born in this city, and attended our city schools until her health began to fail.

The funeral services were held at the home last Wednesday afternoon, Rev. F. A. Nimits, of the M. E. church, and Rev. B. J. H. Shaw, of the First Congregational church, officiating, and the remains were laid at rest in Forest Hill cemetery. The pall bearers were: Elmer Glass, Sidney Denis, Robert Nash, Ben Smart, Lloyd Moore and James Hamilton, and the following young ladies, schoolmates of the deceased, acted as ribbon bearers: Myrtle Kellogg, Beatrice Chardos, Maude Aley, Georgia Kellogg, Isabelle Marshall and Nellie Steib.

The relatives have the heartfelt sympathy of all in this their sad bereavement.

AGNES FINLAY

Miss Agnes Finlay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Finlay, highly respected residents of the town of Saratoga, died at her home in that town last Monday, of consumption, aged 26 years. Miss Finlay was a popular young lady and well known in this city where she had a host of friends who will miss her greatly. The funeral services were held from the Catholic church last Wednesday forenoon and the remains were laid at rest in Calvary cemetery.

Farmers' Institutes for 1900-01

Any farmer or public-spirited business man who wishes to secure an institute for his locality during the winter season of 1900-1901, should send to this office for blank petition and letter of information. Any town, no matter how small or how far from the railroad, is entitled to an institute, provided it is located in a farming district and has a good hall in which a meeting can be held.

Farmers should talk this matter up with their neighbors, and if the sentiment seems in favor of an institute for their town they should write us at once and their request will receive prompt attention.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

Frank P. Daly has been carrying his arm in a sling the past week, the result of an accident which happened to him last Monday morning. The accident was very painful but has not hindered him from talking to people, or cucumber raising to the people.

I tried it and one-half of a 50 cent bottle cured me entirely. I now recommend it to all my friends.—F. A. BARCOK, Erie, Pa. For sale by Johnson & Hill Co.

Last week Mrs. Caroline Grotoski had Adam Beaster arrested for assault and battery, one of the evidences that the lady exhibited being a spot on the forehead where she had undoubtedly received a hard thump with some blunt instrument. Beaster pleaded guilty to the charge when brought before Justice Krouner on Monday but insisted on a jury trial and tried to prove by numerous witnesses that the injury was done to the lady in self defense. The jury, however, failed to see it in the same light and brought in a verdict of guilty. The justice imposed a fine of $5, which with the costs amounted to $52.75. W. J. Conway represented the state, and W. E. Wheelan the defendant. The case will be appealed to circuit court.

MARSHFIELD ITEMS.

The Marshfield News comes out this week with all home print, the publisher being compelled to adopt this method in order to accommodate his large advertising patronage. The paper presents a very creditable appearance and is nearly all set at home, there being very little plate matter used.

Amanda, wife of Wm. Arnet, died last Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the age of 22 years. Deceased was formerly Miss Amanda Rozette, of Arpin. The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon from the Methodist church.

The employees of the Marshfield Brewing company went out on a strike last Friday, their demand being an advance of $5 per month in wages. The point was conceded and they went back to work.

Philip Adler, J. F. Deckert and Charles Luster are preparing for an European tour this summer. They will take in the Paris exposition, and also visit other points of interest in the old world.

Henry Steinmetz died at Marshfield last Wednesday at the age of 79 years. Deceased was born in Germany and had been a resident of this county for the last eight years.

A good roads convention will be held in Marshfield next Wednesday for the purpose of organizing a county good roads association.

Marshfield is to have a new city hall, and plans are to be asked for the same, the cost of the building not to exceed $20,000.

GENERAL COUNTY.

John Pospisiel has 440 acres of land lying in the towns of Sherry and Carlson, and taken altogether it makes a pretty fine farm. He is this season erecting a new barn, one of the largest in Wood county, it being 6x116 feet with 18 foot posts and will cost when completed $1,700. Besides this Mr. Pospisiel has constructed two cattle barns 31x74 feet, he having ninety-six head of cattle. The new main barn will hold 200 tons of hay. Jake Bord, of Vesper, has the contract for erecting the structure.

The Vesper creamery is receiving 4,000 pounds of milk a day now, and the prospects are that this amount will be increased. Mr. Otto seems to know how to make a success of this kind of an institution.

The two cheese factories located in the towns of Sigel and Seneca owned by the Johnson & Hill Co., are turning out 2,400 pounds a week. In consideration of the dry season this is a pretty good showing.

Benson & Anderson, of Vesper, have sold the property known as Camp No. 1 to Julius Kruger for $3,500. The sale also includes several forties of land.

A Card of Thanks.

I wish to say that I feel under lasting obligations for what Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has done for our family. We have used it in so many cases of coughs, lung troubles and whooping cough, and it has always given the most perfect satisfaction. We feel greatly indebted to the manufacturers of this remedy and wish them to please accept our hearty thanks.—Respectfully, Mrs. S. Dory, Des Moines, Iowa. For sale by Johnson & Hill Co. Druggist.

Prospective Match.

Fred Beell, the Marshfield wrestler, has received two challenges during the past week for matches. Some of the sporting fraternity of this city have expressed a desire to have a match held here and it is possible that this may be accomplished. The challenges received by Mr. Beell are from Ed. Adamson, of Indianapolis, and Berthold de Scheller, of Kansas City. Beell was defeated by Adamson in the first match but in the second match Beell came out ahead. Adamson offers to put up a side bet ranging anywhere from $250 to $2,000. Scheller was defeated by Beell in the only match they had, and Scheller wants to bet $200 that he can defeat the Marshfield boy. Both Scheller and Adamson are good men and a match with either one would be a very interesting affair.

Beell has done more or less training all summer and kept himself within the middle-weight limit and could go on the mat in as good condition as he ever was in a few days' time. Lovers of sport who are acquainted with Mr. Beell have always felt friendly toward the young man as he has always taken the best of care of himself and always been on the square. He neither uses alcoholic stimulants nor tobacco in any form and whenever he goes into a match has always gone in to win, so that his friends have the utmost confidence in him. It is probable, however, that Marshfield will put in a bid for a match with either man that Mr. Beell may decide to take on.

Would not Suffer so Again for Fifty Times its Price.

I awoke last night with severe pains in my stomach. I never felt so badly in all my life. When I came down to work this morning I felt so weak I could hardly work. I went to Miller & McCurdy's drug store and they recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It worked like magic and one dose fixed me all right. It certainly is the finest thing I ever used for stomach trouble. I shall not be without it in my home hereafter, for I should not care to endure the sufferings of last night again for fifty times its price.—G. H. WILLSON, Livermore, Burgettstown, Washington Co., Pa. This remedy is for sale by Johnson & Hill Co.

LOCOMOTIVES COLLIDE.

Six Persons Injured in a Smash-Up on the North-Western.

ENGINES ARE SMASHED

A Passenger Train is Wrecked by a Locomotive at a Dangerous Curve.

Fond du Lac, Wis., June 6.—[Special.]—Two North-Western locomotives came together in head-on collision at a few minutes before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon on the Moore & Galloway curve, between McWilliam and Cotton streets. One of them was running light and the other was pulling the Green Lake & Fond du Lac passenger train due here at 4:55 o'clock. Five or six persons received injury.

Mrs. P. P. Blumenthal, Milwaukee; head bruised and limb sprained.

Joseph R. Reek, Neenah, hurt about chest and in region of heart by being thrown against a seat.

Prof. Dwight Marsh, Elgin, face scratched.

Clark, Fond du Lac, head hurt by falling from train.

C. B. Smith, fireman on engine No. 826, cut above eye and face bruised.

Engineer Tom Roberts, of the passenger train, muscles of abdomen wrecked and foot painfully hurt.

The passenger from Green Lake was pulled into the yards on time, with engine No. 826 proceeding north on the main line. Persons who came to the city on the Green Lake train state that the 826 was seen running north for a distance of nearly two miles; then to back up and return to the yard, and then later was to come going north again, at which time the collision occurred.

It is said that Engineer Northrup of the 826 made a statement to the effect that he was bound for Oshkosh and that after he ran almost to North Fond du Lac he discovered that he could not get on for the day.

Before marriage her name was Martha Fairweather, who were born in London, England, and who came to Sheboygan in the early 40s. They built a log cabin which, if it still stood, would be in the northern portion of the city, where a green lake is now located, remaining the property of the Fairweathers.

On June 13, 1845, Martha was born, and there was a big celebration in the neighborhood, in which the Indians joined, there being many Indian camps in the vicinity. The news of the birth spread far and wide, and the reds and whites alike came to view the child on what great interest centered.

Both Engines Smashed.

Statements go to show that Engineer Roberts got his train slowed down pretty well before the engines struck. However, the collision was sufficiently hard to smash the engines and to cause the tender of the passenger engine to crawl up into the engineer's cab, and if Roberts and Corcoran had not jumped they would have been crushed to death in a most horrible manner.

The passenger train had sufficient momentum to push the opposite engine a distance of fifty feet backwards. The boiler of the passenger engine was sprung in such a manner that its contents blew out immediately, causing the roadside to be fenced.

The passengers were tossed forward in their seats in a forcible manner and there were many narrow escapes from painful and lasting injury. In some instances they were thrown over two and three seats.

Engineer Roberts did a graceful act as soon as he took a brief look at his ruined engine, by going back to the coaches to see if any of the passengers were hurt and to give assistance if needed. He found that Mrs. Blumenthal had fainted and that the men who were able to get out had deserted her. He opened the car window and bathed the woman's face with cold water, thus reviving her.

Explanation of the Accident.

Isadore De Ruzsa, M. Clark and James Sweeney, who had been at Princeton looking for work, were riding in the baggage car. Sweeney states that he heard the whistling of an engine "up ahead" and stepped towards the door to look out, but before he could reach it he was covered with trucks and grips and was lying senseless, farther forward in the car. He was thrown out.

He saw the light engine run almost to North Fond du Lac and then back down into the yards before the passenger passed from the Princeton tracks to the North-Western main line.

Later information gives a somewhat remarkable explanation to the accident. Engineer Northrup had orders to take his engine to Oshkosh and pass the southbound passenger at a sliding side of Van Dyke. About a mile and a half out he saw the light engine coming without a fireman, his engine, known in railroad circles as a "hog," being so arranged that the engineer and fireman, when in their seats in the cab, could not see the engine ahead. He stopped his engine and backed into the city, notifying his fireman near Johnson street. The latter had stepped off the engine to get a jug of water and had supposed that his engineer had witnessed his morning. The engine then was again started with colliding with the Princeton passenger at the point above described.

Train Wrecked at Wausaukee.

Wausaukee, Wis., June 6.—[Special.]—While train No. 92 was coming in this morning it struck a string of boxcars on the curve near the turntable there on the main line by the Branch train while switching. One car was piled on the engine, while several others were wrecked. A number of passengers in the caboose got a severe shaking up. The loss will be about $2000. The engine of the freight was disabled before it got here and the engineer was unable to control it.

WEDDING AT PLYMOUTH.

Miss Hallie A. Fuller Weds Chester Ewer of Sheboygan.

Plymouth, Wis., June 6.—[Special.]—Miss Hallie A. Fuller and Chester Ewer of Sheboygan were married at high noon today. Rev. D. C. Hinton of St. Paul's Episcopal church performed the ceremony. The groom's sister, Miss Evangeline acted as bridesmaid and the best man was Mr. Lohman of Sheboygan. The bride is a graduate of the high school here and a sister of the Milwaukee normal. She has taught in that city for several years. Mr. Ewer holds a position with the Goodrich line at Sheboygan.

Menasha, Wis., June 6.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. William Klopfel, formerly settlers in Menasha, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary June 9. Mr. Klopfel conducted the Winnebago Observer, a German newspaper, here for many years.

Menasha, Wis., June 6.—[Special.]—Charles R. Smith, the president of the Menasha Woodmen company and Mrs. Isabella Rogers were married this morning.

FIRST WHITE CHILD BORN IN SHEBOYGAN.

Mrs. Harvey F. Carter, Formerly Martha Fairweather, Has that Honor.

Sheboygan, Wis., June 6.—[Special.]—The census enumerators, through the many questions they of necessity must ask to obtain the information wanted, discovered who was the first white child born in Sheboygan. Mrs. Harvey F. Carter, who lives at 1833 South Thirtieth street, has that honor. There has long been a discussion as to who was the first white born in Sheboygan, and

MRS. HARVEY F. CARTER.

(The First White Born in Sheboygan, Wis.)

The facts concerning the time of the birth of Mrs. Carter undeniably give that honor to her.

Before marriage her name was Martha Fairweather, who were born in London, England, and who came to Sheboygan in the early 40s. They built a log cabin which, if it still stood, would be in the northern portion of the city, where a green lake is now located, remaining the property of the Fairweathers.

FALSE IMPRISONMENT.

Man, Who was Sentenced to Jail, was Confined in the Workhouse.

Manitowoc, Wis., June 6.—[Special.]—The attention of Circuit Court Judge Michael Kirwan is today being occupied by the case of Sebastian Feldschmidt against F. W. Hoefler, Fred Heinemann, John Foss and Otto Zuehlke. It is a prosecution of considerable interest, especially so since the defendants are very prominent citizens of Appleton, whom Feldschmidt sues for $5000 damages, for an imprisonment of less than two hours in the public workhouse of Appleton, claiming that he was wrongfully and unlawfully deprived of his liberty. The facts of the case, briefly stated, are these: It is alleged that Feldschmidt was out having a general good time and creating considerable disturbance on the principal streets of Appleton. About 12 o'clock that night he was arrested for drunk and disorderly conduct by the defendant, Zuehlke, a policeman, and the next day taken by F. W. Hoefler, the city marshal, before Justice F. Heinemann, where, according to his own statement, on witness stand he admitted he admitted he was guilty of the offense charged, and it was so found by the court. The court thereupon fined him $1.05 and ordered him committed to the jail of Outagamie county at hard labor, according to the provisions of the statutes. There was, however, no arrangement by which he could be subjected to hard labor at the county jail proper, and therefore the city marshal took him to the county workhouse, which is separate from the jail, and there confined him. Feldschmidt claims to have been treated by the defendant, Foss, the keeper of the workhouse. The plaintiff claims that he was improperly confined to the county workhouse, and that distinct from the jail, while the defendant claims that the provision of the statute includes the workhouse and that therefore his confinement there was legal. Plaintiff then commenced habeas corpus proceedings to obtain his liberty, and has sued the city marshal, the justice, the policeman and the keeper of the workhouse for damages. F. Heinemann, one of the defendants, and the justice who decided the case, was for many years a resident of this city and is well known here. The defendants claim that ex-Sheriff Robert McMurdo of Outagamie county is back of the whole matter, and wants to get his fees for commitment to the county jail during his term. This is the first jury case to be tried.

SEBASTIAN FELDSCHEIDT.

(Plaintiff in False Imprisonment Case.)

The facts concerning the time of the birth of Mrs. Carter undeniably give that honor to her.

Before marriage her name was Martha Fairweather, who were born in London, England, and who came to Sheboygan in the early 40s. They built a log cabin which, if it still stood, would be in the northern portion of the city, where a green lake is now located, remaining the property of the Fairweathers.

On June 13, 1845, Martha was born, and there was a big celebration in the neighborhood, in which the Indians joined, there being many Indian camps in the vicinity. The news of the birth spread far and wide, and the reds and whites alike came to view the child on what great interest centered.

CATE-DAHL WEDDING.

The City Attorney of Waupaca Marries a Stevens Point Girl.

Stevens Point, Wis., June 6.—[Special.]—In many respects the handsomest and probably the most elaborate church wedding that ever took place in Stevens Point was solemnized at 3 o'clock last evening at Church of the Intercession, when Miss Georgiana Cate, youngest daughter of Judge and Mrs. George W. Cate, and Gearhard Melvin Dahl of Waupaca were married by Rev. R. H. Weller. Miss Kish Cate acted as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Misses Emlen Knight of Ashland; Mary Thayer, Milwaukee; Genevieve McDill, Grace, Wis.; Nellie Lamoreux and Ina Fenwick of Stevens Point. Joseph E. Davies of Watertown was best man and the following young men acted as ushers: Henry B. Cate, Menominee, Mich.; Walter S. Cate, Ashland; A. F. Kender, Milwaukee; L. E. Kirkland, Jefferson, Wis.; C. L. TRY TO WRECK A TRAIN.

A Chicago & North-Western Engine is Thrown Off the Track.

SWITCH MEDDLED WITH

A Serious Accident is Narrowly Averted—Track Torn Up for Some Distance.

Fond du Lac, Wis., June 5.—[Special.]—What appeared to the officials of the North-Western as a deliberate attempt at train-wrecking occurred at 6:40 last evening, when passenger train No. 9 of the Chicago & North-Western pulled into the station. The switch at Second and Brooke streets, which had evidently been tampered with, was partially open, and the engine left the track, toppling over on its right and blocking the line for over two hours.

Train No. 9 was in charge of Conductor Eugene Dixon. It was pulled by engine 60, with Charles Anderson at the throttle. Mr. Anderson and his fireman made a leap for safety as the engine went over, and escaped. The only damage done was to the engine and the main track, the ties of which were plowed up for a distance of nearly 100 feet.

The switch which was left open was one of the spring-split kind but recently placed by the North-Western. Assistant Division Superintendent Moulton, who was at the station and who saw the wreck, declared that it was impossible for the switch to have been open had it not been tampered with. A fact that adds strength to Mr. Moulton's theory is that the key to this switch could not be found after the accident.

After delay of about a half hour engine 431, in charge of Engineer Irving, was attached to the train, which proceeded to Green Bay.

THE STRANGE STORY OF A DEAL MADE IN LA CROSSE BY A CENSUS ENUMERATOR.

Galesville, Wis., June 5.—[Special.]—Sam Thompson, a census enumerator of the town of Holmes, was in the city last night armed with a shotgun, looking for a gang of horse traders with whom he had swapped horses the day before. Thompson had need of a driving horse in taking the census, and traded a fine heavy draft horse for a sleek-looking animal which the traders had in their string. Thompson was much pleased with the trade, but he changed his mind a few hours later when the animal kicked his road cart to pieces and threw him out in the road. He rushed into the house, grabbed a shotgun and started after the trader with blood on his eye. When he reached this city some friends hearing of his difficulty and learning of his intentions, persuaded him to give up his murderous designs. He then decided to shoot the horse, but would not be selling him to a trader for $10. The next day the traders tried to buy the horse from the livery at a low price, but could not do it. It seems that the horse was noted for his kicking propensities, and was kept in stock by the traders, counting on the trading him one day and getting him back the next at a profit.

LA CROSSE GIRL SCORES A HIT

Miss Anna Hickisch Sings Before New York Women's Club.

La Crosse, Wis., June 5.—[Special.]—Miss Anna Hickisch, a La Crosse girl, 25 years of age, sang and scored a notable hit at the last meeting of the College Women's Club at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York City, where she appeared under the patronage of Mrs. Angus Cameron of this city. Miss Hickisch sang "Vander Smeeke's" "Oh, Come in the Summer Night," and George Chadwick's "Before the Dawn." Miss Hickisch comes of one of the old German families of La Crosse, she is a graduate of the La Crosse high school and spent something over two years in study under the best masters in Paris and Berlin. After a short visit at home, Miss Hickisch went back East and has since devoted herself to church and concert singing. She has a remarkably clear and sweet soprano voice. She will in all probability be one of the soloists at the saengerfest in Davenport, Ia., this summer.

West Superior, Wis., June 6.—[Special.]—The 8-year-old son of T. M. Thorson of this city fell from a ladder while at play, and struck his lower jaw on the edge of a tub which had iron rim. The lower row of teeth, with the gums, was broken in, but the doctors hope to save teeth which were pulled back into place.

WOULDN'T MOVE OUT.

Eight Nearly Prevents Erection of $50,000 Building.

West Superior, Wis., June 6.—[Special.]—A fight between landlord and tenant, which bids fair to prevent the erection of a $50,000 business block here, has just been ended, the two parties coming to an agreement. The Grand Union hotel, occupied part of a building, which was to be torn down to make room for the new one. The other tenants moved, but the tea company refused, claiming to have a lease. It demanded damages, but the prospective builders refused and although the excavation had already been commenced it was decided, the builders claimed, to stop work for a year if the ejectment suit against the tea company was not won. The suit will not now be tried.

GLASGOW'S EXPERIENCE.

Better Service Since the City Operates the Traction Lines.

Since Glasgow took over the tramways in 1894 the cars have been kept well painted, well cleaned and well-lighted. Advertisements have been banished, further improving the appearance of the cars, although diminishing by many thousands the revenue of the undertaking. The routes are painted conspicuously on the end and side boards, and the cars of the various routes can easily be distinguished at some distance by their different colors. Standing in the aisles is not permitted, and the cars are run so frequently that one seldom has to wait for the car he wishes. Fully twice as many cars are now being run by the city as were used by the old company, although the track mileage has been increased only slightly. Routes passing through the heart of the city have been instituted.

All traffic employees, from conductor to point boy, have been uniformed. The horses are kept in excellent condition, and one does not see the poor old "shacks" which adorn the streets in some cities. Further, horse traction will soon be replaced by electricity. On two occasions the trolley system has been in operation some time; a third was opened last November; and the electrical conversion of the entire system is being proceeded with—Municipal Affairs.

Nicholas Is Chivalry.
Rough and harsh as he was, Nicholas I, Czar of Russia, had a measure of chivalry in his disposition. While driving through the streets of St. Petersburg one occasion, he caught sight of an officer of his household in the act of upsetting an old beggar woman, whose hands were raised in a prayer for alms. The official was quite unmindful of the august witness of his act, and was rather pleased when, a few hours later, he was summoned to the imperial presence. Nicholas soon undeceived him, and in the presence of a dozen courtiers cut him to the quick with his indignant reproof. "Enough," said Nicholas, "finally, you will walk up and down that corridor all night, and every time you turn you will see, in a loud voice, 'I am a puppy! I am a puppy!'"

Such a need is abundantly supplied in the superior meats put up by the old reliable house of Libby, McNeill & Libby, Chicago, one of whose specialties is advertised in another column of this paper, and their booklet, "How to Make Good Things to Eat," is offered free on application.

Treatment of Siberian Prisoners.
A traveler returning from Siberia says: "The prisoners are not chained. They eat at the same table with their guards. The government provides a pension of $6 a month to the family of each prisoner. At the expiration of his sentence the prisoner can take up his home in Siberia and the government will assist him. It allows him a home and implements with which to work."

What Do the Children Drink?
Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing, and takes the place of coffee. The more GRAIN-O you give the children the more healthful you distribute through their systems. GRAIN-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee, but costs about 1/2 as much. All grocers sell it. 15c and 25c.

A Good Argument.
The education of women must play an important part in the development of the South, according to Dr. C. D. McElver, the principal of the normal school at Greensboro, N. C. "Educate a man and you do well," he says. "Educate a woman and you do better, for you have not only educated her, but have made sure of the education of four or five of the next generation."

THE FRUITS OF WAR.

British Prestige Restored, Priceless Territory Annexed, President Kruger Vanquished.

London, June 2.—Popular opinion has proclaimed the advent of victory and whatever happens hereafter in South Africa the interest of the British public will be but little unless the event is endorsed by a peculiarly personal element. The nation has made up its mind that the war is over; that prestige of British arms is restored; that President Kruger is vanquished; that priceless territory has been annexed; that humanity has not been outraged and that, led by that little Sir Galahad, "Little Boats," Great Britain's army has filled the most optimistic expectations. Nevertheless, among the few serious minded who have intimate knowledge of the Boers and the plans of the war office there exist grave apprehensions of developments in the near future. They see the possibility of long drawn out guerrilla fighting, treks into Rhodesia, internal disorganization in the Transvaal due to bandits, and a thousand and one lawless elements that evolve themselves from a heterogeneous army after it ceases to become an organized body.

Problems for Britain to Tackle.
Some of the acute authorities on South Africa matters say Mr. Gen. Frederick Carrington's work in Rhodesia may only begin when Lord Roberts finishes. Such speculation, however, is far only for the future. The war, so far, has completely upset the surmises of those best fitted to express opinions. Probably the most reasonable forecast of immediate developments in the Transvaal can be gained by reviewing the events in the Free State or Orange River colony. There, though the country is formally annexed and is subjected to a winnowing process by a long line of British troops, opposition still exists. The preponderance of numbers is bound to eventually reduce the inhabitants to subjection and so it will be, probably, with the Transvaal, the occupation of Pretoria and Johannesburg being followed by operations similar to those uninteresting movements now undertaken by Gen. Buller and Buller in the Orange River colony.

Kruger is Still President.
The personal status of President Kruger is the subject of the capital in creating some discussion. A representative of the Associated Press learns that Lord Salisbury will consider him to be President of the South African republic until Lord Roberts is ready to annex that territory. Hence, wherever President Kruger may be, even if he goes into Portuguese territory, and any communications which he might make to the British or other governments looking to the cessation of hostilities would be regarded as official recognition and be answered, though it is said to say Lord Salisbury would merely refer President Kruger to Lord Roberts. Some surmise messages from "Omni Paul" is now expected at the indicated line of procedure in answering it is carried out it can result in nothing unless President Kruger is willing to assist Lord Roberts in persuading the people to lay down their arms. On one thing the British government is determined—i. e., President Kruger cannot stay in the Transvaal. In the event of his capture he must be transported, not necessarily in defiance but he must be got out of the territory which Lord Salisbury expects will shortly be part of the British empire. Every effort will be made to capture President Kruger, but the government officials are inclined to believe he will manage to get into Portuguese territory, where the British will be unable to touch him.

Buller Lost in the Shuffle.
One of the most curious features of the closing chapters of the great war is the oblivion into which Gen. Buller has fallen. A few months ago it was Buller who would stem the tide of Boer invasion. It was Buller who would enter Pretoria on Christmas day. Yet now Gen. Buller is scarcely mentioned. Gen. French, Hamilton and others are all more frequently talked of and cheerfully than the former commander-in-chief who seems to have become a negligible quantity in the shadow of the Big game.

Words fail to describe the national gratefulness to Lord Roberts. Wellington never was to England what Roberts is today in the eyes of the general public. A dukedom and the order of the garter at the Queen's disposal through the death of the Duke of Argyll are the least rewards that could be bestowed on him. Already people are talking of the scenes which will mark his homecoming. Conspicuous military critics occasionally try to bring on Lord Kitchener's name, but their efforts have small effect on the popular sentiments.

An extraordinary incident in connection with the battering of the coast-defense ironclad Belle Isle by the battleship Majestic has just leaked out. It appears that the loaded howitzer on the Belle Isle was discharged by the effect of the shells of the Majestic and only a smart maneuvering on the part of the modern warship saved her from being blown up by the self-released projectile of the old hull.

Royal Residence in Ireland.
The fact of the Duke of Connaught having taken Lord Francis Clinton Hope's castle Blaney, County Monaghan, for the season, with the option for five years, seems to indicate the establishment of a royal residence in Ireland. But, whether the Queen will occupy the residence which Mrs. Hope (the American actress, otherwise Lady Hope, has just vacated in order to fulfill theatrical engagements in Australia, it is impossible to say. But Castle Blaney is one of the most beautiful in Ireland, and it is understood that the Duke and Duchess of Connaught are satisfied with it they will take it for a long term.

The Duke of Argyll announces that Inverary Castle, with its immense domain, is for rent and England is wondering what American millionaire is likely to occupy this historic mansion.

Scandal in High Life.
One of the most remarkable, though posthumous, exposures of the too-easy of English life in high places, came up this week when Mrs. William Beckwith sued the estate of the late William Beckwith, a former member of Parliament, for compensation of herself and her alleged children. Mr. Beckwith was head of one of the wealthiest private banking firms in England and eminently respected in Parliament and in society. It is reported that Mrs. Beckwith lived as his mistress for many years and that the couple amused themselves by buying children which they passed off as their own. As Beckwith wished to use the children to "shift" his own family into ownership of the Beckwith estate, he sent to the payment of three sums to his mistress. She accumulated seven children so deeply that the judge remarked: "You seem to have bought babies as the people buy puppies." Mrs. Beckwith was acquitted.

A CHINESE WONDER.

The Great Tide at Hang-Chau a National Phenomenon.

Eliza Ruhamah Schidmore describes in the Century a great national phenomenon which she has observed on one of her many visits to the long-lived Chinese empire.

"There are three wonders in the history of China," she writes, "the Demons at Tang-chau, the Tunder at Luog-chau, and the Great Tide at Hang-chau, the last the greatest of all, and a living wonder to this day of the open door, while its rivals are lost in myth and oblivion. On the eighteenth night of the second moon, and on the eighteenth night of the eighth and ninth moons of the Chinese year, the greatest flood-tides from the Pacific surge into the funnel mouth of Hang-chau bay to the bars and fairs at the mouth of the swift-flowing Tien-tang. The river current opposes for a while, until the angry sea rises and rides on, in a great, white, roaring, bubbling wave ten feet, fifteen and even twenty feet in height. The Great Bore, the White Thing, charges up the narrowing river at a speed of ten to thirteen miles an hour, with a roar that can be heard for an hour before it arrives, the most sensational, spectacular, fascinating tidal phenomenon a real wonder of the whole world, worth going far and waiting long to see."

"Oh! How Happy I Am."
"HOW HAPPY I AM to be able to say that I am free from pain after five years of severe suffering from neuralgia," writes Mrs. Archie Young, 1817 Oak Avenue, West Superior, Wis. "I am so thankful to be able to say that your '3 Drops' is the best medicine I ever got in my life. When I received it from you last November, I used some of it right away. The first dose helped me. It is impossible to explain how I was suffering from neuralgia. I thought no one could get worse, and that death would soon come. I was very weak, and I hardly thought I could live to see my husband come back from his free labor. Now I can say that I am free from pain, my cheeks are red, my appetite is good and I sleep well all night. Many of my friends are surprised, and say they will send for some '3 Drops.' Baby Made a Hit.

H. C. Barnabee, the popular comedian of the Bostonians, tells a story about a baby which made the hit of the evening at a certain performance of "Patience," in which he took part. "There was a young couple up in the gallery," he says, "and they had the baby contingent along. My thunderous tones repeating my lines, 'Where the dust of an earthy today is the earth of a dusty tomorrow,' awaked the baby, and it began to cry loud and long. Then came my lines, 'It's a little thing of my own,' I made the most of them, and the house caught on and yelled itself hoarse."

Fresh Water Three Miles Off Shore.

Every little schoolboy and girl in America has learned from the geography that the fresh water current of the Amazon extends into the ocean twenty miles from the mouth of that noble river, so that ships are able to get drinking water from the ocean when out of sight of land. But even among the grown folk it is not generally known that Americans have a river in which they can take similar pride. On still, calm days the crew of the lightship anchored three miles southwest of the mouth of the Columbia River, Oregon, are able at strong ebb tide to send a bucket over the side and bring up water so palatably fresh as to be used for drinking. This fresh water spreads out over the surface of the ocean in the shape of a fan, the apex being the mouth of the Columbia. It is only about two feet in depth, and if the bucket is allowed to sink below that the water with which it is filled is strong with ocean brine.

MEMORIAL SERMON.

The following was delivered on Sunday last by the Rev. B. J. H. Shaw in memorial of the late Mrs. G. F. Witter, a former highly respected resident of this city, who died at San Jose, Cal., May 17, 1900.

The lives of the saints themselves are the popular illustration of eternal truths. This is the first lesson of the cloud of witnesses, the power of living example. When you are weary and faint in your minds look to the lives of those who bore the burden, fulfilled their mission in life, were faithful to duty in every temptation and endured the martyr's crown. Learn the reality of religion, the mighty, victorious power of faith by looking at the cloud of witnesses.

But the writer seems to imply that we have more than mere examples for our encouragement. He says they committed a work which is still being carried out; they inaugurated a dispensation not yet completed; they heard the still small voice of a promise which the ages must fulfill. These all having obtained a good report, their faith, their hope, their love, God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect.

All they did still lives; they handed down a work which must continue; not one least part of their effort will be wasted.

We speak of one generation passing and another taking its place, but that does not sufficiently describe the movement of the ages. The process of nature is a continual birth; not a mechanical change, but a vital process, a succession of creations but an endless evolution.

One generation is born out of another. No generation can pass away until it has fulfilled its purpose, in the very act of dissolution it transmits all its vital energy and moral power to its successor.

Historically death is change, change is growth and growth is unending progress. When we look at the cloud of witnesses we behold the past bringing forth the present, the great labors, there is the source of the thought which thrusts into our brain, the emotion which thrills in our heart, the inspiration which quickens our souls. In the procession of humanity there has been no break, no interval. The stream of life has been pouring continuously onward, not one drop of the vital current has been lost. In the rich and varied life of to-day there is gathered up the cumulative power of all thought and emotion and activity from that immeasurable Past. We are the heirs of all the generations, their rich treasures have descended to us.

We sometimes speak of the saints and heroes of history as tho they were gone from us forever and nothing remained for us except to follow their example, but death, instead of being destructive is very often a dynamic power.

"They live again in minds made better by their presence; In pulses stirred to generosity, in scars For miserable aims that end with self, In thoughts sublime that pierce the night like stars, And with their mild persistence urge man on to vaster issues."

And so death very often only enlarges the scope and deepens the intensity of their influence. Death seems to be the real commencement of a great man's work.

We are more influenced by the dead than the living. They still live and move us all, yet more than we are aware. Being dead, they speak, speak with a silent yet effective voice, penetrating us with a message we cannot refuse to receive. Take away the presence of the dead, deprive us of their legacy and we should wander in ignorance and often fall thro' weakness. We owe much of what is best in our life to-day to the noble and wisdom of those we revered, admired and loved when they were present with us. The dear departed still live in the dearest places of our hearts, they inspire our minds, inspire our hearts and shape our character. Not only in the cold museum of the memory, but in the living temple of the soul do they dwell and exert their beneficent influence.

And this is true not only of the great names of history; the obscure names of humble life are also more than examples or memories, they are among the closest and most potent influences of our life. In that cloud of witnesses are some who once travelled life's journey with us, dear companions and faithful friends. And these beloved ones are not lost, as life goes on and one and another is taken from us, we are not left wholly desolate, they come more closely to us and enter more deeply into our lives than ever before. We understand them better, we see the true quality of their life, its finer parts and disengaged from the imperfections, its holy spirit, a comfort comes and brings all things to our remembrance, throws a fuller light on words and deeds, and helps us to see how full they were of love and goodness.

Yes, the sainted dead not only shine upon us as bright examples, their life is ever present with us, to guide and strengthen in all our efforts to live and act wisely.

But the author of this episode, when he points to those who form the cloud of witnesses, is thinking of more than their example and influence; he has also a profound faith in their everlasting life.

Not only has death failed to destroy their influence, he believes it has not been able to touch their souls. "We are come," he says, "into the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels, the spirits of just men made perfect, and to the spirits of great men made perfect." The sainted souls are not only a cloud of witnesses above us and watching our movements, our trials and struggles with keenest interest. They form an assembly to which we are traveling, they are a family which we shall join one day.

That completes the lesson and crowns the triumph of our faith.

Those heroic men and women, images less favored than our own, were faithful to the faintest whispers of a promise they could not fully understand; they groped after a truth they could not clearly see, worked bravely for a vast issue of which they had only partial glimpses, and, having shared the toil and strife, they shall share the triumph and enter into the reward of their faith; this is part of the great fact of life; immortality, its rewards for noble lives and service, its vindication of righteousness, its rest after honest toil and heroic conflict with evil. This immortality is an essential part of life, life is not complete without it, life would be a mockery without it, it would be a desire never to be fulfilled, its highest hope would be doomed to disappointment, if life did not continue and so forward to some great result. Then it would be empty of all meaning. The work of character building would be a waste of energy and effort. Those who have tried to perfect life, to do the highest kind of work will perish.

There can be no more irrational or unscientific thought of the than that. All the tendencies of life are against that view and the tendencies mean an outcome. Everything points to some grand issue. The ideals, the aspirations, the hopes, the endeavors of those who have believed in perfection, were the prophecies of a coming realization. The earthly life of the saint, the martyr, the servant of mankind, lead with perfect nature on to a heavenly life. There could be nothing more unjust than that they who had done so much for the perfecting of man should be lost to the perfecting of man's life.

I have chosen my theme this morning with reference to the death of one who was long associated with this church and a dear friend to many of you. The death of another, who felt by those most intimate with Mrs. Witter, that an opportunity should be given to show their deep respect and high appreciation of the noble influence of her life, the influence of the finest and most enduring kind, not demonstrative, but quiet and unassuming, the unconscious influence of a lofty character, pervading the life of others by its sweet purity.

"The blessing of her quiet life Fell on us like the dew; And good thoughts, where her footsteps pressed, Like fairy blossoms grew."

This gentle power of the spiritual life is of the highest value to the church and the world; it wins its way into the hearts of others, and works its influence of transformation without noise or show. The world believes in pure goodness, not in the empty profession of it, but in that which slowly emanates from the inner life as fragrance from the heart of the flower. It is impossible to measure the influence of even one such life in a church, we are molded in ways unknown to us, and deep and hidden changes to which affect our whole after life. We may not see, at the time, what we owe to a life of high spiritual quality, but it has made an impression so deep and great that it ever abides with us. I am not surprised to learn that Mrs. Witter had many deeply attached friends, such a strong personality, possessing sterling qualities, she did it is certain to draw all those who love true worth. Friendship is all the more precious as it is strong and permanent, and in a new country with all its instability, an unchanging friend is a priceless possession. Lasting friendships begin by the perception of the genuine character. Mrs. Witter has been enabled her to discover those who were worthy, to avoid the deception she despised, to grow ever more closely to those who were sincere and real. That is the true method of encouraging sincerity and helping on the development of reality in life, not to smile at hypocrisy just as we would at a child who is not sincere, but to be tolerant of make-believes as we would with the weaknesses of those who are striving after a genuine life and character. Mrs. Witter could not have the same feeling nor show the same attitude to the false as the true, her fine moral sense would not permit her to know that she has a friend of home, and that is a good old fashioned virtue, a habit of devotion which needs our vigilance to maintain, in our efforts to do good in larger spheres let us be faithful in our duties to those who are nearest us. The mother who sends forth her children into the world with hearts full of pure love, with a desire for whatever is good and good, with faith in truth and right, with the ever-present influence of a noble example, she fulfills her duty to the world in the best possible way. The first place where the work of regenerating the nation must begin, and the mother who makes its whole atmosphere pure and healthy, who teaches her children in all that helps to build up strong moral and religious life, she does the work for which God ordained her the greatest service for society. Mrs. Witter was a great sufferer, and yet she bore it patiently and bravely. She did not doubt the divine goodness when pain was acute, her faith was too strong for doubt. Her firm foundations, on everlasting realities, it was the soul's vision of the divine love. She saw the purpose of the all-wise Father who makes life perfect thro' suffering, the faith that a perfect and blessed life hereafter would be its sublime outcome, was a source of unflinching strength and comfort to her. And so affection and reverence has led us to dwell for awhile on some of the prominent features of Mrs. Witter's character and work. It is good for us to think of the sweet and quiet loveliness of her life. It is our duty to be grateful for such examples of Christian consistency, for the spiritual power they have on others. Those of us who were privileged with an intimate acquaintance will cherish the memory of a faithful friendship and all the blessing it brought into your lives. I know I only interpret your sympathy with the bereaved husband and children by speaking for you to them, that you sorrow with them, and pray that with the sorrow there may mingle every divine consolation.

Petition presented asking the city to put in a passable condition by widening and stumping the road running west from the west line of Sec. 16 to Milwaukee street being the road running east and west along the north side of the Wm. Corcoran place.

Same was referred to street committee to report on at the next meeting. The following petition was presented:

Grand Rapids, Wis., June 5, 1900.
To the Honorable Mayor and Common Council of Grand Rapids, Wisconsin.

Under the name of the Grand Rapids Association, by their committee on public improvements, would respectfully call your attention to the desirability of cleaning rubbish from the following localities on the East side:

First, On the street near Farish's lumber yard, better known as the old Hopp house, to remove machinery, stumps, etc.

Second, The city lot next to John E. Daly's drug store.

Third, Lot next to Baker's furniture store.

Fourth, The river bank from below the bridge to Williams' island.

Fifth, The river bank above from the Congregational church to Mr. Lutz's old brewery.

Sixth, Complaints come from people in regard to shavings which are hauled from the saw mill to the Grand Rapids Table Co. as they are scattered along the street, and on to the lawns, etc.

Seventh, The old fence on the west side of the city lot near the county jail should be removed.

WEST SIDE.
First, Along the St. Paul switch from the Centralia fire house to the Jackson flour mill, containing rubbish, stumps, logs, brick and sewer pipe.

Second, Along the Green Bay track from one crossing to the other, everything is dumped and looks badly from the railroad.

Third, Shavings being hauled from the Mackinnon Mfg. company's plant to the Twin City Electric plant, are scattered along the street and on the lawns in the vicinity thereof.

Fourth, The streets back and on the side of the planing mill contain a large quantity of rubbish and also stumps that ought to be removed. It also would improve the general appearance of our streets if the owners would move the wagons, carriages, bicycle frames, etc., from the streets.

Some ordinances ought to be enacted to prevent parties from dumping rubbish along the banks of the river. It is understood that the city has a dumping ground for such material, and this ought to be where such material should be deposited.

Respectfully submitted,
Mrs. W. T. JONES,
Chairman of the Committee.

Same was referred to Aldermen Brazeau, Pratt, and Rossier with power to enforce and grant the relief prayed for.

The ordinance committee was instructed to draw a proper ordinance providing a dumping place for rubbish and garbage with penalty attached for dumping elsewhere.

The city attorney made a report on the bill of A. L. Fontaine. He further reported on the opening up of a certain street in 5th ward as follows:

To the Honorable Mayor and Common Council of the City of Grand Rapids: The undersigned city attorney, to whom was referred the petition to lay out a certain street running between the premises owned by Herman Wadke and Albert Hahn connecting French street with the road leading to Rudolph, to ascertain who owns the land between the said premises of Herman Wadke and Albert Hahn, reports as follows:

It appears from the manner in which the premises of Albert Hahn and Herman Wadke were conveyed and also all other premises adjoining said proposed road as conveyed by the original owner of Government lot No. three (3), section 18, eighth (8), township No. twenty-two (22), range six (6) east and also by Sargent & Philley's recorded plat of the city of Centralia that the land between the premises owned by Herman Wadke and Albert Hahn has been dedicated for the purpose of a street being a continuation of the street between the premises owned by Adolph Miller and August Krahl so as to connect French street with the road leading to Rudolph.

Such a dedication is sufficient and the street committee would be authorized at any time they determined to open up said street and put the same in passable condition.

Dated May 25th, 1900.
W. E. WHEELAN,
City Attorney.

UNCLE SAM'S SAVINGS BANK.

A NEW USE FOR THE POSTAL MONEY ORDER DEPARTMENT.

The Convenient and Safe Means Offered by the Government for Depositing Money—One May Buy a Money Order Payable to Himself.

The money order department of the post office is fast becoming the people's bank. Every afternoon the depositors line up in front of the "Savings" window of the big office at Ninth and Walnut streets, just as they do before the receiving teller's window in the banks. The line is not as long in the post office, however, because the new system which makes this department of the government a safe and convenient bank has been in existence only a few months.

One who has money to deposit goes to the post office and fills out a blank application, making the order payable to himself. The money goes into the funds of the government, but the depositor keeps the receipt to show that he has deposited money in the post office. The receipt takes the place of a deposit book used by one who deposits money in a bank. The privilege of making a money order payable to "self," or to anyone in the same city as the purchaser, was granted by the government only a few months ago. The present money order makes it possible for the people to use the money order department as a depository for their savings. The new plan is so simple that almost anyone can use it. The office has about half a dozen depositors daily, and some of the accounts run as high as $5,000. The deposits are made in the form of money orders, and the present money order rates make it less costly to deposit money in large amounts than in small.

In addition to the regular charge, two cents is collected on each order for war revenue. IT IS ABSOLUTELY SAFE.

But the government as a bank has one great advantage—showing advantage over private banks—its absolute safety. Banks may fail, but the government is as solid as a rock. Money once deposited in Uncle Sam's bank is safe as Uncle Sam's life, and he has stood the test of time.
